

VIRGINIA DEPARTMENT OF HISTORIC RESOURCES WRITING STYLE SHEET

This style sheet is based on the style sheet developed by Susan Foard, copy editor for the 4th edition of the Virginia Landmarks Register. Calder Loth, Senior Architectural Historian with VDHR, has added a number of Virginia idioms and land mines one should keep in mind. DHR staff updated the style sheet in 2013.

Style sheets can be subjective but they are necessary to maintain consistency in publications. This style sheet is recommended for all nominations of Virginia's historic properties. It is important to be consistent in use of the same terms, forms, and spellings to maintain clarity of meaning. Suggestions for additions and amendments to this style sheet are welcome.

Terminology Checks

Archaic Terms for Race

Use archaic terms such as “Negro,” “colored,” “mulatto,” “quadroon,” “octoroon,” and others based on perceived racial lineage only when quoting directly from a historic source, when using the proper name of a historic document (such as a census) or institution (such as the United Negro College Fund and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People), or when listing the title of a publication.

Battle

battle, as in second battle of Manassas; but Yorktown Battlefield battle of Manassas (Confederate designation); battle of Bull Run (Union designation for same battle) Southerners use nearest town, Northerners use nearest creek or river for name.

Century

the 18th century (noun); built in the mid-18th century; the late 18th century; 18th-century mantel;
mid-18th- century mantel; early 18th-century mantel (“mid” requires a hyphen whether used with a noun or an adjective. It’s okay to use numerals instead of spelling out the number of the century if you need to save space.

Chamber

historic term normally used for a bedroom, not synonymous with room. The generic “dining room chamber” means the bedroom over the dining room; “porch chamber” means the bedroom or chamber over the porch.

Church

the Anglican church (general); the Episcopal church in Virginia; First Baptist Church in the city of Richmond.

Include denomination name to avoid confusion-- St. Paul’s Episcopal Church; St. Paul’s Roman Catholic Church. Not necessary to add denomination name when the historic church name is very individual: Pohick Church, Aquia Church, Falls Church.

Clapboard

Short lengths of riven (split) wood boards used as siding. The term Clapboard is not synonymous with Weatherboard.

Commas

three-bay, two-and-one-half-story town house; small, mid-19th-century country church; his wife, Maria Fletcher, moved.

Always use commas after and in a series: smokehouse, dairy, icehouse, and privy

Complement vs. compliment

A full complement of outbuildings is extant. The outbuildings complement the manor house.
He complimented her carpentry skills.

Decades

Many writers use 1600s, 1700s, 1800s, 1900s to refer to the entirety of the seventeenth, eighteenth, nineteenth, and twentieth centuries, while other writers use the same terms to refer to the first decade of those centuries. To compare – “During the 1600s, European settlement repeatedly was stymied by factors ranging from armed conflict to disease to natural disasters.” “During the 1900s, Craftsman emerged as a nationally popular style.” To avoid confusion, it is best to spell out which century is being discussed – “During the seventeenth century, European settlement in Virginia became firmly established” – and to specify which decade of a century is being discussed – “By the early 1900s, most cities had established municipal water systems; during the 1910s, electrical cooperatives also proliferated.”

Enslaved vs. “slave”

Discussion of enslaved individuals should be treated as a discrete topic that warrants thoughtful analysis. Use of the term “slave” is discouraged because an individual’s identity was not solely based on whether they were held in bondage by other people. Persons who were enslaved also were mothers, fathers, children, artists, craftsmen, artisans, cooks, nursemaids, spiritual advisors, friends, and numerous other identities.

During the period that slavery was legal in Virginia, historic records and primary sources include slave schedules, slave auctions, and runaway slave advertisements, among many other activities and events. When directly quoting such historic records, the term “slave” is appropriate to use. When interpreting historic data, such as information taken from a census record or a collection of advertisements, refer to these individuals as “enslaved persons.” Do not include enslaved people as an item to be enumerated alongside livestock counts, crop production records, miles of road constructed, etc.

When referring to workers held in bondage, DHR uses the term “enslaved workers,” or “an enslaved labor force.” When historic records are not clear as to the age or living conditions of enslaved persons, then terms such as “enslaved African Americans,” “enslaved individuals,” and “enslaved person(s)” should be used.

Façade

A building has only one façade as a human has only one face. It is redundant to say the front façade; it is incorrect to say the rear façade or side façade. You may say rear elevation or side elevation. In rare cases, as in colonial plantation houses such as Wilton, where the river front and land front are nearly identical or are of equal architectural importance, one might call each main elevation a façade, but it is best to refer to them as land front and river front.

Federal Designations

Virginia has 22 places that are part of the national park system as managed by the National Park Service. Nomenclature for national parks is rarely consistent and it is important to identify each park by its official name. The following list of Virginia places within the national park system is current as of November 17, 2020; a current list is available at <https://www.nps.gov/state/va/index.htm>:

- Appalachian National Scenic Trail

- Appomattox Court House National Historical Park
- Arlington House, the Robert E. Lee Memorial
- Assateague Island National Seashore
- Blue Ridge Parkway
- Booker T. Washington National Monument
- Cape Henry Memorial (part of Colonial National Historical Park)
- Captain John Smith Chesapeake National Historic Trail
- Cedar Creek & Belle Grove National Historical Park
- Chesapeake Bay Watershed
- Civil War Defenses of Washington
- Colonial National Historical Park
- Cumberland Gap National Historical Park
- Fort Monroe National Monument
- Fredericksburg & Spotsylvania National Military Park
- George Washington Memorial Parkway
- George Washington Birthplace National Monument
- Great Falls Park
- Green Springs
- Harpers Ferry National Historical Park
- Historic Jamestowne (part of Colonial National Historical Park)
- Maggie L. Walker National Historic Site
- Manassas National Battlefield Park
- Overmountain Victory National Historic Trail
- Petersburg National Battlefield
- Potomac Heritage National Scenic Trail
- Prince William Forest Park
- Richmond National Battlefield Park
- Shenandoah National Park
- Star-Spangled Banner National Historic Trail
- Washington-Rochambeau Revolutionary Route National Historic Trail
- Wolf Trap National Park for the Performing Arts
- Yorktown Battlefield (part of Colonial National Historical Park)

Free vs. Freed

The complexities of institutionalized slavery in the United States before the Civil War resulted in a variety of terms used to describe the legal status of persons whose ancestry included Africans. The simple word “free” was understood to mean “not allowing slavery” for a place; for a person, it was meant to understood “not held in bondage.”

Antebellum Era

When discussing the antebellum era, the descendants of a free person who were never enslaved themselves can be described as free people (or free African American individuals) if a distinction needs to be made between them and enslaved family or community members. Before the Civil War, a person who was never held in slavery but who appeared to belong to a group likely to have been enslaved was a free person (or free African American individual), not a freed person (or freeman/freedwoman).

A person who was born into slavery or forced into slavery at a later date and subsequently was released from bondage before the Civil War was a free person or manumitted person.

The term “freed person” (or freedman/freedwoman) are generally reserved for those who were emancipated as a result of the Civil War.

Post-Civil War

After the Civil War, the U.S. Bureau of Refugees, Freedmen, and Abandoned Lands (commonly referred to as the Freedmen’s Bureau) provided assistance to emancipated African Americans still living in states where slavery had been legal. Established as part of the U.S. War Department by an act of Congress on 3 March 1865, the Freedmen’s Bureau remained operational until 1872. Therefore, use freedman/freedmen and freedwoman/freedwomen to indicate that both male and female African Americans were among the freed population in postbellum Virginia. Freedpeople also is appropriate.

When discussing the post-Civil War era, descendants of a freed person are not described themselves as free people (or free African Americans) because, with the abolition of slavery, there was no need any longer in the U.S. to distinguish between those who were held in bondage and those who were not.

Freeing a Person from Slavery

Two terms are commonly used when referring to the process of freeing a person from slavery. Although often used interchangeably, they are not synonymous.

- Manumit: to release from slavery (refers to liberation of one or more people by an individual, as contrasted with liberation by government action). In the United States before the Civil War, enslaved persons who were released from bondage by their owners were manumitted.
- Emancipate: to free from restraint, control, or the power of another; especially: to free from bondage (usually, though not always, used to refer to setting an entire population free). During the War of 1812, the British government offered emancipation to enslaved persons who reached British-held territory, such as Tangier Island, and British ships, and transported these individuals to British colonies to live as free British citizens. Beginning with the Emancipation Proclamation during the Civil War, the U.S. government emancipated enslaved persons as a group, which resulted in abolition of slavery throughout the country.

Garden

Use “garden” instead of backyard where appropriate: The pergola was the crowning architectural accent of the garden. NOT: The pergola was the crowning architectural accent of the backyard. Also note that backyard is usually one word not two.

Hyphens

Use for adjectival phrases:

- curved-span bridge
- large wood-frame smokehouse
- center-passage house
- garden-city planning concept
- low- and middle-income residents
- double-pile plan
- common-rafter roof system
- two-room-plan dwelling
- two-and-one-half-story house (or 2½-story house, but never 2.5-story house)
- shed-roof porch

gable-roof dwelling

Nouns:

The house was built in the mid-nineteenth century.

The house was built in the mid- to late nineteenth century.

The central-passage plan was popular during the nineteenth century.

Do not use a hyphen after an -ly adverb:

The porch has wonderfully convoluted sawn brackets.

Use a hyphen to indicate a date range when necessary:

The town's population grew rapidly during the period 1830-1850.

Alternative: The town's population grew rapidly between 1830 and 1850.

Alternative: From 1830 to 1850 the town's population grew rapidly.

Not: The town's population grew rapidly between 1830-1850.

Not: From 1830-1850 the town's population grew rapidly.

Modern

“Modern” is meaningless when used to refer to period of construction as it is too broad and ill defined to indicate specific characteristics. “Modern shed,” “modern windows,” “modern development,” etc. should not be used. Rather, use an estimated date – “ca. 1980 shed,” “replacement sash installed after World War II,” “development that began during the 1960s.” Or use the term “non-historic” in lieu of “modern.” On the other hand, referring to Modern architecture is fine when discussing New Formalism, Neo-Expressionism, Brutalism, Post-Modern, Wrightian, Miesian, or any of the architectural idioms associated with the Modern movement.

Modernist/Modernism

Very generally, a “modernist” is a person (usually an architect) who eschews traditional design, especially classicism. The term “Modernist” can also be a catch-all adjective for any contemporary building that avoids any hint of traditional design. e.g. “It’s a modernist house, not a colonial.”

“Modernism” is normally thought of as a historic style, more or less synonymous with the International Style, popularized in the 1920s and continued into the 1960s with Meis van der Rohe and his contemporaries. It can also include Art Deco. Be aware that the terms are still used very loosely and others may have their own ideas of what they mean.

Names

Alexander Jackson Davis; Andrew Jackson Downing; Edgar Allan Poe (never Allen); Minard Lafever; Philip (Christian name--not Phillip) William B. Phillips, Jeffersonian mason.

Nationalities

Individuals with ancestral roots in places all over the world have come to call Virginia home. A person’s ancestral lineage should be described as precisely as possible. For example, instead of “Asian,” state the name of the country in question. The place’s current name should be used whenever possible. Place names that are associated with a colonization era (i.e., Southern Rhodesia) may be used when discussing the period in which the name was used, but the place’s current name (i.e., Zimbabwe) also should be explained. An archaic name that pre- or postdates a colonization era but was in use during the period associated with the person’s ancestry also can be used, but inclusion of the current name is helpful. In some instances, a country may no longer exist as the political entity it used to be. Examples include Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union. For these instances, use the name in place during the historic period being discussed but also provide the current name, whether it has become an independent nation (such as Serbia, formerly a part of Yugoslavia) or is an entity within a nation (such as Chechnya, a republic in Russia, which once was part of the Soviet Union).

Nobility and Titles

Knighthood: Sir Dudley Ward or Sir Dudley; never Sir Ward

Lady (title of wife of a knight or a peer): Lady Grafton to refer to the wife of the Earl of Grafton , but Lady Alice Grafton or Lady Alice when referring to the daughter of the Earl of Grafton . Lady Astor was married to Lord Astor; Lady Diana was the daughter of Earl Spencer. The wife of Sir Peyton Skipwith is Lady Skipwith, not Lady Jean.

The Chicago Manual of Style says to lower case titles: the duke of Gloucester. It's really okay (actually better taste) to upper case them: the Duke of Gloucester; the Marquis de Lafayette.

Numbers

Use numerals for numbers higher than 100: approx. 30,000 years; more than 14,500 people; nearly 250,000 fragments; the first 10,000 years; over 300 people.

For numbers less than 100, write out: twenty-five trees.

Combine numbers and writing out for very large numbers – 3 million miles.

For precise measurements, use numerals – 6.1453 miles

Combine numerals, symbols, and writing out for very large numbers – $20 million.

Use numbers for measurements instead of spelling out:

30' x 40' not thirty by forty feet

But don't spell out fractions: two-story but 2 1/2-story

Passage

Term preferred over “hall” for colonial-era houses, e.g. stair passage, center passage, center-passage plan.

Pennsylvania German, or Pennsylvania Deutsch; not Pennsylvania Dutch (they are Germans).

Periods

Paleo-Indian; Archaic; Woodland; Late Woodland; Early Woodland artifacts; contact-period; colonial period; Federal period

Plantation

Using plantation in a name is redundant – Westover; Shirley; never Westover Plantation or Shirley Plantation.

Plurals and Possessives

Be aware of the following usages:

The Hopkins House.

The house occupied by the Hopkinses.

Thomas Hopkins's house (Not: Thomas Hopkins' house).

Railroad (American usage)/ Railway (British usage)

Norfolk and Western Railway Co. (official name) but also can use Norfolk and Western railroad. Always double-check the official names of railroad companies; they are not consistent as to whether they are railroad or railway companies. Also remember the Seaboard Air Line Railroad!

Regions in Virginia

Capitalize regions when they are being described as distinct entities, but don't capitalize when they are used as approximate geographic locations. E.g., the Piedmont; the Piedmont counties; Piedmont Virginia; Southside Virginia; Tidewater; Southwest Virginia; Northern Virginia.

Traffic delays in Northern Virginia are well known, but Southside Virginia hasn't experienced the same phenomenon.

Richmond is located in central Virginia, while Highland County is on Virginia's western border.

Resource Types in National Register Nominations

The National Register recognizes five resource types: building, structure, site, object, and district. Each has a specific meaning when used in a nomination, and each type should be used consistently. "Building" and "structure" cannot be used interchangeably.

Reverend

the Reverend Mr. Smith (Episcopal priest); Reverend Smith (protestant preacher)

the Rev. Mr. Smith can be used also the Right Reverend James Smith (Episcopal Bishop)

the Most Reverend James Smith (Catholic Bishop): both addressed as Bishop Smith.

Mr. Smith (Episcopal priest)

Ms. Smith (female Episcopal priest)

Father Smith (Catholic priest or high-church Episcopal)

Pastor Smith, Reverend Smith, or Dr. Smith (Protestant preacher)

Scots-Irish and Scottish

Scots-Irish is becoming more preferred but Scotch-Irish can be used.

Scotch is a whisky (no 'e') manufactured in Scotland; Bourbon in a whiskey (with an "e") that is manufactured in the United States. It is better to use Scottish as in Scottish influence; One can be under the influence of scotch, but there is no such thing as Scotch influence.

Significant

"Significant" and "significance" have specific meanings in National Register nominations. Avoid using the word "significant" unless referring to an aspect of a property or historic district that helps illustrate its historic or architectural significance. The word "significant" can be synonymous with other words, such as "major" or "extensive," but in nominations, we prefer not to use "significant" in these cases when another word will work. For example, instead of "Along the southern edge of town, significant recent development has taken place that is dissimilar to the central core," rephrase as "Along the southern edge of town, extensive recent development is not in keeping with the historic character of the central core."

Slant

use hyphen instead; builder-architect; teacher-clergyman; not builder/architect. If referring to more than one person, "and/or" can be used, as in, "The builder and/or architect emphasized classicism."

Street addresses

Write out-- 202 North Granby Street; West Franklin Street; 2801 Kensington Avenue.

Ninth and Grace streets; not Ninth and Grace Streets

For numbered streets, check the locality – Twenty-fifth Street would be used in some places; others use ordinals – 25th Street.

Styles - Architecture

Classical Revival, Gothic Revival, Late Gothic Revival (when referring to the Gothic style after High Victorian Gothic), Greek Revival, Second Empire, High Victorian Italianate, Romanesque Revival, Queen Anne, Beaux Arts classicism, Renaissance Revival, Georgian Revival, classical-style building, Federal-style building, Beaux Arts-style building, Jacobean, Romantic Revivalism, mid-Georgian house, late Georgian house, Colonial Revival, Adamesque, Rhenish, Italian Villa style, classical, neoclassical Jacobean baroque style, the cottage style, the chalet style, neo-Palladian, Jeffersonian Classical style, Bungalow-Craftsman style, International style, Bungalowoid mode, bungalow style houses, the American Country House movement, Moderne, Roman classicism.

Unique

A resource should not be described as “unique” unless documentation exists that it is truly the one and only of its kind (such as Monticello).

University

Capitalize u only when in full title, such as the University of Virginia or University of North Carolina. But: a student at the university in Charlottesville; and never “The University” in reference to UVA.

Vernacular

The NPS does not consider “vernacular” by itself to be an architectural style because it doesn’t describe specific characteristics. In Section 7 of nomination forms, for a resource with no discernible style, refer to the type or form as follows – “Other: split-level dwelling”; “Other: office building”; “Other: I-house”. For a resource that features minimal stylistic characteristics that reference one or more popular national styles, use “Other: vernacular Queen Anne/Colonial Revival”; “Other: vernacular Craftsman”; “Other: vernacular Moderne.”

In text, describe the characteristics of the resource, for example:

An I-house dwelling with Colonial Revival stylistic ornamentation is located at the intersection.

The cul-de-sac features a collection of ca. 1960 split-level dwellings.

The front porch is embellished with mass-produced decorative elements, including a turned railing and spindled brackets, that are typical of vernacular Queen Anne houses built during the late nineteenth century.

Virginia Indians

When discussing the collective indigenous groups native to Virginia, use the term Virginia Indians. If discussing a particular state-recognized tribe’s history, such as the Monacan, Nottaway, or Mattaponi, use the tribe’s name.

Weatherboard

Smooth, sawn wood boards used as siding. Weatherboard siding sometimes has a beaded edge, but this is not always the case. The term Weatherboard is not synonymous with Clapboard.

Spelling and Grammar Checks

Decades

1920s, not 1920's

A

Abingdon (never Abington)

Accomack (county)

Accomac (county seat)

accommodate (never accomodate)

aedicule

Afro-American (scholarly term)

African-American (preferred term)

air-conditioning

Albemarle (not Albermarle or Albamarle)

Allegheny Mountains

Alleghany County

antebellum

architrave: the lower member of an entablature

Arlington County (Arlington is a county, not an independent city)

&: Hopkins & Bros. Store

asymmetrical

B

backcountry

bateaux (plural)

bathhouse

bargeboard

baseboard

belt course

belvedere

Berkeley: name of colonial governor & plantation (not Berkely)

best-preserved (adj.) among the best-preserved houses of its type

bed and breakfast

Belmead (A. J. Davis-designed mansion in Powhatan Co.—never Bellmead, Belmeade, or Bell Mead)

Beverley: Virginia family; Beverley Street, Staunton

Beverly: girl's name

Beverly Hills, California (named for Beverly, Mass.)

board-and-batten

boathouse

bottomlands

boxwood

boys' school; girls' school

brickwork; brick-ended; Flemish-bond brick walls; rubbed-brick arches; gauged-brick lintels;

glazed-header Flemish bond; molded-brick doorway

brickyard

bull's-eye window

C

ca. for circa; built ca. 1788
campus (do not use when referring to U.Va.—it’s the U.Va. grounds, not campus)
canalboats
cannonballs
Cary (Virginia family name—not Carey)
cemetery (never cemetary!)
Central European
chair rail (two words; never chairrail)
campaign: the Peninsula campaign (lc) Carpenter’s Gothic
cast-iron façade (adj); built of cast iron (noun)
cast-metal cap
cemetery
chair rail
the Chesapeake Bay (never Chesapeake Bay)
chiefdom (lc)
chimney breast
chimneypiece
chimney stacks
city of Richmond (not City of Richmond unless referring directly to the local government itself)
Clarke County (not Clark)
clapboard, clapboarding (these terms are not synonymous with weatherboard and weatherboarding)
classical, neoclassical; Classical Revival clipped-gable roof
closed-string stair
CSA (Confederate States of America)
coastal plain Indians
colonnade
colonnettes
complement (complete a whole); compliment (praise)
cookhouse
courthouse (building): the Hanover County courthouse;
Court House (town) i.e., Hanover Court House – some county seats: Fairfax, Gloucester, Amelia, and Prince George, among them, no longer use the suffix Court House.
cross: Latin-cross plan
colonial-period
color: dark red brick building
common-rafter roof system
Commonwealth’s attorney
corbelled corncrib
corner block
council: the governor’s council (lc)
county of Franklin; Franklin County; Bedford and Franklin counties county seat; county-seat village; the Albemarle county seat courthouse vs. Court House – when used generically, courthouse is a single word (i.e., “the county courthouse has the land records.” In Virginia, communities that were county seats often included “Court House” as part of their formal name, such as Appomattox Court House.

Cradock (historic district in Portsmouth—never Craddock)
The Virginia Constitution; the constitution of 1902
crossette
Culpeper (not Culpepper)

D

dates: January 15, 1998, not 15 January, 1998
day-care center
Deep South
Democratic party
derivative
dimensions: use 24 X 43 feet (not 24' X 43')
district: Yorktown Historic District, commercial district
dogtrot
doorknobs
double-hung sash
double-pile plan
dovecote
double-hung sash window
Douglas (surname and Christian name)
Douglass: Frederick Douglass (African American leader)
Dulany (old Alexandria family, never Dulaney)
duck house
Drs. Smith and Jones
dressed-stone gate post
Dupont (name of company; also DuPont; also Du Pont; also E. I. Du Pont De Nemours, Inc.); du Pont and duPont (family name): rarely consistent even among family members. Sometimes even Dupont; i.e. take your pick and stick with it.

E

east (direction)
East Coast
Eastern Shore (Virginia region)
Edinburg (town in Shenandoah Co.)
Edinburgh (city in Scotland)
Executive Mansion (official name for Governor's Mansion—it's ok to say Governor's Mansion but should use the former as the formal term)
Emancipation
end post
era: Federal-era mantels; Revolutionary-era cannon; Progressive era
the Evacuation Fire
exuberant

F

fall line
fanlight
farmhouse
farmland

the Jones farm
farmhouse
far-western farther (distance); further (additional) Federal-period house
federal government
fenestration ferryboat
ferry-house
fine-quality linen
five-part house
Flemish-bond brick (But: The brick was laid in Flemish bond.)
flush-board siding
Fort Monroe (current name) Fortress Monroe (19th century name used in advertisements; not an official name)
foursquare
furnace: single-stack, hot-blast charcoal furnace freestanding column
Friends meeting
Friends' meetinghouse

G

gable-roofed (Not: gabled-roof)
gambrel; gambrel-roof rear wing
Gay Mont (estate in Caroline Co., not Gaymont) Gen. Robert E. Lee; Capt. Douglas Harnsberger; Confederate general Robert E. Lee; *use Gen. Philip Sheridan (not Maj. Gen. or middle initial) generals Lee and Grant; General Grant
General Assembly
glebe house;
greenbelt
Green Springs (historic district in Louisa Co.)
Green Spring or Greenspring (historic site in James City Co.)
grid plan; grid-plan street pattern
gristmill
guesthouse
guttae (pl.) gutta (singular) [a peg-like motif on a Doric entablature] hall-parlor; not hall/parlor. The house has a hall-parlor plan.

H

Hampden-Sydney College (never Hampton-Sidney) Hampton University (no longer Hampton Institute)
handrail
Hanover (Virginia County)
Hannover (German principality)
H-L hinges
henhouse
high-style: high-style woodwork
hipped roof (better than hip roof); hipped-roof dormers historic: “a historic house” is American usage; “an historic house” tends to be seen as British historical marker (as in highway historical markers) historic marker (a marker that is historic in its own right; the 1748 milepost is a historic marker)

horse breeding house: the Branch house; the Nelson house (1c house) not The Branch House;
hung sash (noun); hung-sash window

I

I-house: the I-house is big; the I-house plan
icehouse
Immanuel Episcopal Church (historic church in Hanover Co.); Emmanuel Episcopal Church (historic churches in King George Co. and Powhatan Co.); many other examples of this inconsistency, be careful.
in antis (antae pl.)
in muris
in situ
Indian (acceptable, Native American is preferred term)
Interstate Highway 66
ironmaking (n.) pig iron ironwork

J

jailer
jerkinhead roof

K

keystone
king-post truss

L

Lafayette: not La Fayette, la Fayette or LaFayette land-use planning
lifestyle
Light-Horse Harry Lee
like: cottagelike
lock-keeper’s house
loom house
Loyalist
long: three century-long period
Loudoun County (never Loudon, although it is sometimes spelled that way in Scotland)
limestone
lock no. 4 longhouse
long-term goal; longest-term tenure

M

“Main Street”; typical “Main Street” architecture manor house
mansard roof

Mansfield (historic landmark in Dinwiddie Co.)
Mannsfield (historic site in Spotsylvania Co.)
mantel (fireplace surround)
mantle (a cloak); Mickey Mantle
marbleizing; marbleized
Marshall (family name—John Marshall)
Marshal (military title—Marshal Foch)
Massacre (do not say the Great Indian Massacre of 1622; use Great Indian Uprising of 1622.)
Mathews County
Mathew Brady
St. Matthew
Matthew Jones house
medium-size house
meetinghouse (generic) but sometimes two words in formal name: Hopewell Friends Meeting House
metope (s)
the mid-1930s
midcentury middle-class: the person was middle-class; middle-class neighborhood mile-long milepost
millennium
millowner
modillion
molding (American spelling—The mantel has carved moldings.)
mold (to form, also fuzzy green stuff) moulding and mould (British spelling—don't use)
much-altered

N

Nanzatico: historic estate in King George Co.
Nanzattico; Indian tribe on Northern Neck
National Park Service (not National Parks Service)
newel
nicknames: Robert (“King”) Carter
northern (direction)
Northern Virginia (Virginia region)
northerners, southerners

O

occur; occurred; occurring
old-fashioned house
once-important
open-string stair

P

panel; paneled; paneling
pattern book (two words are better) pattern-book illustration pavilion (not pavillion – this is French spelling)

Piedmont (Virginia region)
pilaster-framed pipestem
plasterwork
plate-glass windows
Pocahontas (not Pocohontas)
porticoes
pressed-brick (adj.)
principal (adj.)
principle (noun)
pro-military
public school facilities
pre-Revolutionary War; Revolutionary-era house
principal-purlin roof

Q

quoin
quoins

R

right-of-way for singular – A VDOT-owned right-of-way crosses the southern parcel.
rights-of-way for plural – three rights-of-way are along the battlefield boundaries, with two owned by VDOT and one by Dominion Virginia Power.
riverbank
riverboat
river port; river town
the Rives papers
rock-faced house
county route 616
English romantic landscaping
Romantic Revivalism
the romantic informality
roof deck
roof line
round-arch window
rubblestone
run-down

S

St.: better St. Paul's Church than Saint Paul's Church
Saint Paul (historic figure)
Philip St. George Cocke
saloon: the Anglicized version of the French word salon. It can mean a very grand drawing room or parlor, not a honky-tonk western bar.
sawn-work
schoolhouse
Scotsman, a Scot
Scottish Baronial style

segmental-arched doorway
servants' house
Seven Days' battles
shipbuilders
set-back
side-passage-plan dwelling sidelight
silver-plated knob
soapmaking
small-town: Bridgewater has a small-town character.
south (direction)
"Southern" image
Southside (Virginia region)
Southwest Virginia (Virginia region. But: southwestern Virginia)
Spotswood, Alexander (colonial governor; not Spottswood) springhouse
stained glass (noun)
stained-glass windows (adj.)
stair hall
stair-hall arch
standing-seam metal
stepped-gable
Stick-style
Stirling (plantation in Spotsylvania Co.; easement property—from Stirling Castle, Scotland)
Sterling Park (Northern Va. suburb, also a type of silver) strap hinge streetscapes
Stanardsville (not Standardsville or Stannardsville)
Stonewall Jackson ok; don't have to use "Stonewall" Jackson storefront
Strasburg (town in Shenandoah County)
Strasbourg (city in France)
street names: Broad Street; Fifth Street; Broad and Fifth streets
Sunday school
Surry County, Virginia
Surrey County, England

T

terra-cotta facade (adj.); terra cotta (noun)
theater (not theatre unless official name: Byrd Theatre)
three-bay facade (adj.); three bays (noun)
Tidewater (Virginia region)
town house (not townhouse – unless referring to the semi-detached dwellings that started being built in the mid-20th century in suburban residential developments)
town-house development
town hall
town of Rocky Mount (Not: Town of Rocky Mount); Rocky Mount town traceries
traveler (traveller is British spelling, don't use)

Traveller (Lee's horse)
trashpit
trompe l'oeil
tollhouse
Tuscan-porticoed
Three-Notched Road (or Three-Chopt)
through-truss bridge
Truxtun (historic district in Portsmouth—never Truxton)

U

U. S. brigadier general – she was a U.S. brigadier general.
U. S. Geological Survey
U. S. Census
U. S. Coast Guard
Union army
upper South – Virginia is located in the upper South.
Union brigadier general – he served as a Union brigadier general until his retirement.

V

V-notching
VMI
VPI (okay for Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University)
veranda (American spelling)
verandah (British spelling—best not to use) visitors' center
a visitor attraction

W

walkway
wainscoted; wainscoting
water table
Waverley & Waverly (some places use the final e, some do not, always double-check) weatherboards; weatherboarded
west (direction)
Westend (historic estate in Louisa County—not West End)
white-painted joints windows – when describing windows, maintain consistency in terminology. For instance, if describing light patterns, don't refer to a 6/6 pattern in one place and a nine-over-nine pattern in another place.
wood frame (n.) wood-frame plantation house
wood graining
wood-shingle house
worshippers
workers' houses
wraparound porch
wrought-iron bridge; bridge made of wrought iron

X

Y

Y-plan

Y-tracery

Z