(Describe the historic and current physical appearance and condition of the property. Describe contributing and noncontributing resources if applicable. Begin with a summary paragraph that briefly describes the general characteristics of the property, such as its location, type, style, method of construction, setting, size, and significant features. Indicate whether the property has historic integrity.)

Summary Paragraph

This updated nomination is submitted in partial fulfillment of the stipulations outlined in the Memorandum of Agreement (MOA) among HHHunt Winterpock, LLC, the Virginia State Historic Preservation Office (Virginia Department of Historic Resources [VDHR]), and the Norfolk District, Corps Of Engineers (Stipulation I, June 2023). The Chesterfield Historical Society of Virginia is a consulting party to the MOA.

The Fuqua Farm (VDHR #020-0337) was listed in the National Register of Historic Places in 2017. The original nomination included a full description of the architectural resources on the farm, a detailed inventory of the historic resources, and their NRHP status. The 2024 Boundary Decrease for the Fuqua Farm is a result of a property conveyance from the originally listed property that reduces the intact acreage associated with the historic dwelling from 23.3 acres to 4.5 acres (see Additional Documentation 1). The land that has been sold is slated for residential development. The 2024 update also includes Additional Documentation pertaining to the Fuqua Cemetery (VDHR #020-6306), which was not included as part of the originally nominated property because the cemetery was located on a separate parcel and was not owned by the same property owner. In 2022, the land on which the cemetery was located was sold and is slated for residential development. After consultation with VDHR, the burials were disinterred and relocated under a permit for the Archaeological Recovery of Human Remains issued by that agency

(November 2022). The cemetery contained the graves of members of the extended Fuqua family, several of whom lived on the Fuqua Farm, and, for this reason and per the stipulations in the MOA, information linking these two historically related resources is included in this update. The 2024 Boundary Decrease and Additional Documentation do not change the status of any of the previously listed resources, nor does it change the areas of significance or the period of significance; however, the number of resources encompassed within the property's revised boundary will decrease from 12 to 10. The northeast part of the former NRHP-listed property has been sold and was the site of the Spring House (c. 1932), a contributing structure, and the Pump House (c. 2010), a non-contributing structure. Those structures, although still extant and in good condition, are not encompassed by the revised boundary and are removed from the property's resource count. The MOA also stipulated that the description of the property's setting be updated to reflect the changes anticipated from the impending residential development.

Narrative Description

Location and Setting

The Fuqua Farm is located on the west side of Bethia Road (8700 Bethia Road) as it curves west of Winterpock Road (Route 621) in the Matoaca District of Chesterfield County, Virginia. In recent years the area surrounding the farm has experienced significant changeover from rural farmland, open space, and woodlands to suburban residential and commercial development. The land is generally characterized by low to moderate topographic relief, shallow ravines, creeks, and wetlands, which drain into the Swift Creek Reservoir. Vegetation on the farm and in the general area consists primarily of sub-mature and mature deciduous forest mixed with occasional areas of evergreens and grasslands. Numerous mature shrubs and trees stand in the house yard, including a large elm tree near the southeast corner of the house. The tree is the lone survivor of a pair of trees that formerly stood at either end (east and west) of the house.

The revised property boundaries retain the long (1/3 mile), approximately 12-foot-wide, gravel-surfaced driveway leading from the west side of Bethia Road to the house site. A row of mature cedar trees line part of the north side of the driveway, while other areas extend through stands of woods and open fields. The house, which sits on a slight rise above the driveway faces south. The revised boundaries of the house site encompass 10 of the 12 previously recorded and listed historic architectural resources associated with the dwelling and farm.

Despite the boundary decrease, the immediate area around the historic dwelling will remain intact, including the driveway, house yard, and general area around the associated building complex, residential development will occur on the north and south sides of the listed property. The development will range from 60- to 80-foot-wide single-family dwelling lots and will include an area of multi-family dwellings. An area east of the historic buildings is proposed for an open-space park and an amenity area (possibly a community pool and/or community center). The change in setting will be from a generally rural, undeveloped setting to a suburban residential setting. This alteration in the surrounding setting, however, will not alter the characteristics that qualify the Fuqua Farm for listing in the NRHP. Further discussion of the proposed residential development adjacent to the Fuqua Farm is provided below as part of the Integrity analysis.

Fuqua Cemetery, 8500 Bethia Road (VDHR #020-6306)

The 2017 NRHP nomination for the Fuqua Farm did not include the nearby Fuqua Cemetery, which stood on a separate parcel owned by a different family member. The cemetery is historically associated with the Fuqua Farm and contains the graves of several family members who occupied the historic dwelling. In 2006, the family heirs subdivided approximately 217 acres formerly owned by Cornelius W. Fuqua (died 1924) into three parcels: Parcel 1 (104.66 acres) lying south of the historic dwelling, Parcel 2 (23.2 acres) encompassing the house site, surrounding acreage, and the driveway; and Parcel 3 (89.9 acres) land located north and east of the historic dwelling and the site of the cemetery (Chesterfield County Deed Book 7914:966; Chesterfield County Plat Book 180:163).

In 2022, the owner of Parcel 3 sold the land to a development company that planned to construct an apartment community on the site. The cemetery contained five graves that were marked with engraved headstones and additional graves that were identified by unengraved granite, fieldstone, or marble head/footstones. In total, field survey determined that there were 18 graves in the cemetery—16 adults and two children under the age of five. Due to the location of the cemetery, and the nature of the development affecting the cemetery's setting, the decision was made to remove the burials and to reinter them in a more suitable location. Upon approval of the VDHR Burial Permit (VDHR File No. 2022-2013) and in consultation with family members, exhumation of the burials was undertaken and the remains were relocated to Roselawn Cemetery in Hanover County, VA (March 2023). Stipulation I of the 2023 MOA requires that a discussion of the cemetery and its disinterment be included with this nomination update due to its historical association with the Fuqua Farm. The former cemetery site remains outside of the nominated property boundaries. The following information is taken from the exhumation report (Browning 2023). Current photographs of the former cemetery site are included with this nomination.

The Fuqua Cemetery, formerly a part of the 400-acre farm owned by John Fuqua in 1805, stood in an open field on an upland terrace overlooking a steep decline to the north and to the east. The site, approximately 1,100 feet northeast of the Fuqua Farm dwelling, was distinguished by yucca plants, periwinkle, and mature cedar trees, two of which had intruded into grave sites. The trees were removed as part of the disinterment process. Dense strips of woodland stand east and west of the cemetery site.

The graves in the Fuqua Cemetery were arranged in four linear rows extending north to south with the graves facing east (see Additional Documentation 2). The first row, the westernmost row, contained four graves (identified as Graves 1 through 4); the second row contained four graves (Graves 3 through 8), and the third row contained six graves (Graves 9 through 13). All graves in the first and second rows were marked with simple filed stones or marble headstones/footstones without engraving. Two additional graves (identified as Graves 11 and 12, as discussed further below) also were marked with such blocks. The fifth and easternmost row contained five graves

Fuqua Farm (2024 Boundary Decrease; Additional Documentation)
Name of Property

County and State

(Graves 14 through 18), which also were the most recent burials and were all marked with engraved headstones.

The graves marked with engraved headstones provided names, birth and death dates of the interred. The identities of five additional individuals buried at the cemetery were determined through archival research and the information was confirmed by family history. While not definitive, based on grave size and archival information, tentative identifications were made for three of the graves without headstones. Archival investigation indicated that James Edward Fuqua, a nearly 14 year old male, was buried in Grave 11; that Lily May Fuqua, an infant female, was buried in Grave 12; and that Maud Estelle Fuqua, a 3 year old female, was buried in Grave 13. These graves were near the center of the third row of burials.

Archival research shows that the earliest recorded burial in the Fuqua Cemetery was for Lily May Fuqua, who was born in April 1886 and died in June 1887; the most recent burial, which was marked with a headstone, was for Mary Lucinda Bailey Fuqua, wife of Cornelius Wood Fuqua, who was born in 1860 and died in 1941. Cincinnatus H. Brooks was buried at the Fuqua Cemetery in 1911 and his second wife Eliza T. Brooks (married 1878) was buried there in 1937. Ida Winston Brooks, the daughter of Cincinnatus Brooks by his first wife, Frances E. Clay, was buried adjacent to Eliza in 1921. In what appears to be an extension of the graveyard to the north, Cornelius Wood Fuqua, who regained ownership of the family farm in 1902 and was the son of William G. and Mary Francis Wood Fuqua and the grandson of John and Lucy Clayton Fuqua, was buried in 1924 and his wife Mary Lucinda Bailey Fuqua was buried in 1941.

INVENTORY

The original nomination for the Fuqua Farm identified and fully described seven contributing and five non-contributing resources on the property (Friedburg 2016). Secondary resources are a mix of historic and non-historic structures that stand north, east, and west of the primary resource, a single family dwelling. Those secondary resources constructed in the first half of the twentieth century and within the period of significance are considered contributing resources to the Fuqua Farm property. Those recently constructed, though largely completed in a complementary manner, are non-contributing as they postdate the property's period of significance (c. 1785-1946). Two resources that were listed with the property in 2016 stand in the area of the 2024 Boundary Decrease and have been removed from the resource count for this property. The resources listed below are keyed by number and name to the attached Sketch Map.

- 1. Single dwelling, c. 1785, c. 1805; joined c. 1905; Federal style, Vernacular; Contributing Building
- 2. Well, 1932; No Style; Contributing Structure
- 3. Chicken House, c. 1900; No Style; Contributing Building
- 4. Hen House, c.1900; No Style; Contributing Building

Single dwelling (c. 1785; c. 1805; joined c. 1905; Federal style, Vernacular; Contributing Building)

2016: The south-facing, one-and-a-half-story, frame building consists of two separate one-room plan houses that were joined together about 1905. The symmetrical massing and fenestration of each house section, the simply framed multi-pane wooden sash windows, and the original brickwork on the western half of the house are indicative of Federal style influences. The juncture of the two buildings is defined on the exterior by different foundation materials, a line in the siding, and different roof lines. The eastern block (c. 1805) is supported by stone piers infilled with concrete blocks. The foundation of the western block (c. 1785) consists of brick laid in an English bond which encloses a full English basement. The exterior walls are clad with beaded weatherboards. A side-gable roof, clad in green standing-seam metal, covers the house. The roofline is slightly lower on the eastern block of the house, once more indicating the two separate original houses. The roof is pierced at three locations, both on the front and back, for gable roof dormers with six-over-six single-hung sash windows. There are a total of four dormers on the western block of the house and two on the eastern. Exterior end brick chimneys are centered on the gable ends of the house. The earlier chimney on the west elevation has a Flemish bond on its lower half and features two sets of shoulders. The c. 1905 brick chimney, laid in a stretcher bond, on the east elevation has one set of shoulders and is enclosed on the first floor within the now enclosed porch.

October 2023: The dwelling at the Fuqua Farm retains good overall integrity and is in good condition. As noted in the original nomination, the house retains a significant amount of historic fabric from the original one-room-plan houses, the c.1905 renovation which joined the two houses, and from the 1930s or 1940s renovation which enclosed the porch. Repair and rehabilitation of the house undertaken between 2000 and 2011 was completed in a sensitive manner keeping as much original material intact as possible and using in-kind materials where replacements were necessary wherever possible. No changes have been made to the dwelling since the 2016 nomination.

Well (1947; No Style; Contributing Structure)

2016: Located approximately 20 feet east of the dwelling and within the house yard is a bricklined well original to the farm (c. 1785). It is currently capped by a concrete cap and is surrounded by a concrete slab. The slab, as evidenced by incised writing, was set in 1932.

October 2023: The well and its concrete cap remain intact and in good condition. The inscription in the concrete appears to "July 16, 1947," rather than "1932." No changes have been made to this resource since the 2016 nomination.

Chicken House (c. 1900; No Style; Contributing Building)

2016: At the end of the northern branch of the driveway at the gravel parking pad is a long, one-story frame chicken house clad in wooden boards. The side-facing gable roof is covered with standing seam metal. This resource was constructed in the first half of the twentieth century and was used in a farming operation that provided chickens, turkeys, and eggs to the Richmond market. Much of the original building is intact, although structural repairs and siding replacement have been made as necessary.

October 2023: The chicken house remains standing, but is in poor condition. Part of the rear of the roof has collapsed and much of the building is overgrown with vegetation, although it is still used for storage. No changes have been made to the building since the 2016 nomination.

Hen House (c.1900; No Style; Contributing Building)

2016: Located west of the chicken house is a one-story frame hen house. Constructed in the first half of the twentieth century, this is a contributing resource to the Fuqua Farm. While still standing, the building is largely obscured by overgrown vegetation, but remains in good condition and will be repaired and restored.

October 2023: The hen house is in poor condition. No repairs or restoration has taken place since the 2016 nomination and the roof has collapsed, possibly due to a tree fall or structural failure. The building, located at the edge of a wooded area, is largely overgrown with vegetation.

Garage 1 (c. 1945; No Style; Contributing Building)

2016: Located approximately 100 feet northwest of the dwelling is a one-bay, one-story frame garage clad in vertical wood boards. The front-gable roof is covered with standing seam metal.

October 2023: The garage remains intact and is in good-to-fair condition. Some sheathing is missing from the north wall and the building appears to be listing to one side. At present, the building is used to store materials and some equipment.

Shed 1 (c. 1945; No Style; Contributing Building)

2016: At the edge of the clearing west of the house is a one-story frame shed clad in weatherboard and vertical boards. The front-gable roof, covered with standing seam metal, extends out on either side to cover lean-to type additions. This resource was constructed in the first half of the twentieth century and is considered contributing to the Fuqua Farm. It is in poor condition.

October 2023: This shed remains standing, but continues in poor condition. Much of the siding is in deteriorated condition, but the roof appears to be in good condition. The side bays have earthen floors, while the center bay is raised on a stacked stone foundation. The interior was not accessible at the time of survey, due to the poor condition of the structure.

Shed 2 (c.2010; No Style; Non-contributing Building)

2016: Located approximately 13 feet from the northeast corner of the house is a one-story frame shed clad in board-and-batten siding. The side-gable roof is covered with standing-seam metal and a small shed-roof addition is located on its east elevation. Though constructed at the location of a previous shed and in a manner using historic building materials and techniques, this structure was constructed c. 2010 and is non-contributing to Fuqua Farm.

October 2023: This non-contributing building remains in its located northeast of the house. It is in good condition, is well maintained, and is active use.

Shed 3 (c. 2012; No Style; Non-contributing Building)

2016: Located approximately 27 feet from the northwest corner of the house is a one-story frame shed clad in vertical boards. The front-gable roof is covered with standing-seam metal. Though constructed in a sensitive manner using historic building materials and techniques, this structure was constructed c. 2012 and is non-contributing to Fuqua Farm. Adjacent to the northeast corner of the shed is a free-standing wood deck with a metal frame and netting.

October 2023: This non-contributing building is currently being dismantled. The building is in good condition, but will be moved off the property within a few months.

Garage 2 (c. 2012; No Style; Non-contributing Building)

2016: Immediately adjacent to the east elevation of the chicken house is a large garage. The gable roof is covered with standing seam metal. This garage was constructed c. 2012 and is noncontributing to the Fuqua Farm.

October 2023: This non-contributing building remains standing on the east end of the chicken house. It is in good condition, is well maintained, and remains in use.

Carriage House (c.2016; No Style; Non-contributing Building)

2016: Located west of the house and the grassy parking area, a one-story frame carriage house replica is under construction. The building is being constructed in a sympathetic manner using post-and beam frame construction with wood pegs and siding of vertical boards with wrought iron head nails. The side-facing gable roof is covered with standing seam metal. Though constructed in a sensitive manner using historic building materials and techniques, this structure, is noncontributing to Fuqua Farm.

October 2023: This non-contributing building remains on the property, but construction was not completed on it. The sides remain mostly unsheathed, but the front-gable roof, which is covered with standing-seam metal, is in good condition.

Resources no longer within the property boundaries

The 2024 Boundary Decrease includes the wooded area northeast of the historic dwelling, where the historic spring house and non-historic pump house are located and are subtracted from the total NRHP-listed resources on the Fuqua Farm property. The removal of these buildings from the nominated property, however, does not significantly impact the eligibility of the property, nor does it adversely affect the characteristics that qualify the Fuqua Farm for listing in the NRHP.

Spring House (c.1932; No Style)

2016: Located at a spring northeast of the dwelling is a low spring house possibly constructed c.1932 when the well was capped off. The water from the spring is pumped to the dwelling. The concrete foundation holds plywood sides, a screened front, and a corrugated metal shed roof. A border of poured concrete is set back from the northeast, southeast, and southwest elevations to protect the foundation from runoff and the buildup of soil. The structure is in good condition.

October 2023: The springhouse remains standing and is in good condition. All elements of the structure are well maintained and the spring was found to be running very strongly.

Pump House (c. 2010; No Style)

2016: Located at a spring northeast of the dwelling is a low pump house. This structure was used for a short time to pump water to the dwelling and it consists of low concrete block walls with a corrugated shed roof.

October 2023: This non-historic structure remains in good condition. It is in a wooded area northeast of the house and is accessed by an old roadbed/footpath. This structure stands just southwest of the historic spring house.

INTEGRITY

Fuqua Farm (2024 Boundary Decrease; Additional Documentation)
Name of Property

Chesterfield County, VA
County and State

The 2024 Boundary Decrease results from conveyances of portions of the formerly NRHP-listed property. The property's acreage has decreased from 23.3 acres (2016 nomination) to 4.5 acres. The sections conveyed from the farm are at the edges of the former boundary and encompass wooded areas and open fields around the historic house site and near the driveway entrance at Bethia Road.

The proposed development of single-family and multi-family dwellings on the land adjacent to the Fuqua Farm includes the extension of two roadways (Harper Mill Parkway from the west and Ashlake Parkway from the north) to a new intersection located north of the NRHP-listed property. A study conducted in November 2022 analyzed the potential visual effects of the proposed construction on the Fuqua Farm. The study found there would be no visibility or very limited visibility of the proposed residential development from the historic dwelling at Fuqua Farm and no visibility or very limited visibility of the development from any of the contributing and non-contributing secondary resources on the NRHP-listed property. Existing topography, forested areas, and other vegetation was deemed adequate to screen the core of Fuqua Farm and most of the associated historic landscape from the proposed development if the existing forest screening remains intact. As an additional protection of the property's viewshed and setting, the MOA stipulated (Stipulation II) that a vegetative buffer/screen will be planted along the southern boundary of the development to ensure minimization of any potential adverse visual effects of the development on the Fuqua Farm (see Additional Documentation 3).

The Preservation Committee of the Chesterfield County Board of Supervisors listed Fuqua Farm as a local landmark under the county's Historic Preservation Ordinance. As a designated local landmark, the property is subject to the committee's review for changes to the exterior of the building or the site. Through this process, a measure of protection has been provided for the historic resources at the Fuqua Farm. The development company has agreed to retain the historic contributing resources on the property and to incorporate the historic dwelling into the amenities of the new community. As part of the planning and permitting process, an amendment was added to the Zoning Case for the proposed development around the property. The "Fuqua Farm Amendment" amended the original case (No. 18SN0809) to adjust the number of proffered lot sizes without increasing the overall density of the development. The amendment states:

The reason for this amendment is that the applicant [the development company] has contracted to purchase additional land within the area that was rezoned with this case. This additional land is within the area identified by the label Fuqua Farm on the Concept Plan included in Case No. 18SN0809. The current owner of the property wanted to retain this portion of her property for her residence. Recently, the current owner decided she did not want to maintain the home on the property and put it up for sale. The existing home has historical significance. The applicant will incorporate the structure into the community's amenities. The structure will be owned by the homeowner's association. Residents will be able to use it on terms set by the association. In addition, the structure be offered for lease to the general public to generate additional revenue for the association to assist with maintenance of the structure (Chesterfield County, Department of Planning, Zoning Case Record 23SN0028, Amendment added 08/02/2023).

The proposed residential development around the Fuqua Farm will not alter the characteristics that qualify it for listing in the NRHP, that is, for its historic architectural significance. The setting will be altered from a rural agricultural setting to a more suburban residential setting. By agreement, the historic resources on this property will be retained by the development company in perpetuity.

Statement of Significance Summary Paragraph (Provide a summary paragraph that includes level of significance, applicable criteria, justification for the period of significance, and any applicable criteria considerations.)

The Fuqua Farm, located at 8700 Bethia Road in Chesterfield County, Virginia, is eligible for listing in the National Register of Historic Places at a local level of significance under Criterion C in the area of Architecture. This 2024 Boundary Decrease and Additional Documentation provides information pertaining to a reduction in the acreage of the historic property, a discussion of the associated (but not NRHP listed) Fuqua Cemetery (VDHR #020-6306) and its disinterment, and an update of the description of the property's setting that will result from proposed residential development on land adjacent to the historic property. All resources originally listed in the NRHP remain extant, although the historic Spring House and the non-historic Pump House are no longer included in the property boundaries. Despite the alteration of the property's setting, no changes will occur to the Fuqua Farm's historic resources and no changes are being made to the property's level of significance, area of significance, or the period of significance.

As the 2016 nomination noted, the Fuqua Farm dwelling consists of two, one-and-a-half-story, one-room-plan houses that were joined together about 1905. The oldest section, on the west end of the present dwelling, dates to the late eighteenth century (c. 1785). The eastern end of the dwelling was built about 1805 at a site south of the present house site. The two buildings were combined by moving the later house and attaching it to the earlier house, thereby creating larger living quarters. The dwelling was again slightly enlarged in the 1930s or early 1940s with the partial enclosure of a wraparound porch. Fuqua Farm is locally significant under Criterion C as an example of late-eighteenth-century/early-nineteenth-century, one-room plan vernacular houses and as an example of early-twentieth-century architectural adaptations to vernacular one-room houses. The resource is significant as a rare example of such early residential construction in Chesterfield County, and exhibits notable form, scale, and character of vernacular dwellings of the time. In 1983, VDHR Architectural Historian Jeffrey M. O'Dell noted that the Fuqua house was "one of the earliest and most substantial one-room-plan dwellings recorded in Chesterfield" (O'Dell 1983:111). Of particular note are the English-bond basement with its intact cooking fireplace, and the fine Flemish bond brickwork and two stepped weatherings of the exterior chimney on the west end of the house. Significant residential and commercial development in the immediate area threatens this resource, and, in fact, is the catalyst for this nomination update. The identified period of significance extends from c.1785, around the earliest known reference to the property in historic records, to 1946, after the end of the last significant construction efforts undertaken by the Fuqua family were completed. The property meets Criteria Consideration B because relocation of the eastern portion of the dwelling occurred c. 1905, during the period of significance.

Narrative Statement of Significance (Provide at least one paragraph for each area of significance.)

The following is taken primarily from the 2016 NRHP nomination for the Fuqua Farm (Friedburg 2016).

Criterion C: Significance as a fine example of evolved early one-room plan vernacular dwellings Fuqua Farm is locally significant under Criterion C in the area of Architecture for its fine, and relatively rare, examples of one-room plan houses. The Fuqua house is unusual in that it provides examples of what may be considered a lower-class one-room plan house (the eastern block of the existing house), as well as a middle-class one-room plan house (the western block of the existing house). Though the building has been altered in the twentieth and twenty-first centuries, it clearly conveys these early house forms as well as typical changes taken to adapt this house type to the southern climate and to accommodate shifts in socio-economic standing and vernacular architecture as a whole.

Criteria Consideration B: Moved Properties

Because the historic dwelling at the Fuqua Farm includes a moved resource (the eastern section of the present dwelling), it must meet the requirements of Criteria Consideration B, which governs the NRHP eligibility of such resources. The Fuqua Farm dwelling meets the consideration since the resource is significant primarily for its architectural value, retains enough of its historic features to convey those values, and retains good integrity overall. The eastern half of the dwelling was moved c. 1905, which was during the period of significance.

Boundary Justification (Explain why the boundaries were selected.)

The property's revised boundary encompasses the 4.5 acres currently associated with the historic dwelling and its associated outbuildings. The boundaries include 10 of the 12 originally listed resources; one contributing structure (Spring House) and one non-historic structure (Pump House) are no longer part of the property. Since the property was listed in the NRHP in 2017, 18.7 acres of the surrounding acreage (open fields and woodlands) have been sold from the original NRHP-listed property. This update seeks to revise the boundaries of the NRHP-listed property to the current property boundaries. This update is being completed in compliance with Stipulation I of the MOA among HHHunt Winterpock, LLC, the Virginia State Historic Preservation Office (Virginia Department of Historic Resources), and the Norfolk District, Corps Of Engineers (June 2023).
